

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus are disclosed for displaying web-based search results. A networked computer hosting a web-accessible database containing content searchable by a networked user is provided. The computer is configured provide a variety of search functions to the user, and produce a set of results responsive to one of the search functions being invoked by the user. The computer is configured to display the results to the user arranged in categories responsive to the invoked search function.